Making templates for Notebook.

How to design planners, journals and printables that look and work their best in Notebook for iPad.

Page size

Best fit	834 × 1210 pt (1668 × 2420 px), portrait. Fills an 11-inch iPad edge to edge.
Other sizes	Any size with the same proportions (about 1 : 1.45) fits edge to edge on every iPad. Other proportions still work, with a margin around the page.
Format	PDF. Vector is best; images inside at 2× are fine.
Background	Pages without a background fill sit on the person's chosen paper colour (cream, white and so on). A background you fill in is kept exactly as designed.
File size	Keep it light: under 50 MB for a full year planner. Large embedded photos slow every page.

Hyperlinks work while you write

Tabs, month links, "back to index" buttons and web links in your PDF all work with a finger tap, even while someone is writing with Apple Pencil. There's no read-only mode to switch to. Use standard PDF links (go to page, or a URL).

Pages that repeat

When someone imports your PDF as a notebook, they can choose:

- One page that repeats. Every new page is a fresh, blank copy of the page they picked. Perfect for daily pages, trade logs and trackers.
- The whole set, in order. For a set of up to 30 pages, a new page 1 follows the last page, so a before/after pair or a weekly spread repeats as a set.
- As paper. Any page can be the background of any notebook.

Design undated pages if you can. Notebook's own planner handles the dates, and your pages stay useful every year.

In your listing

- Use the Made for Notebook badge or the Works with Notebook banner from `etsy/`.
- Say how to use it: "Open Notebook, tap Import PDF, then choose Notebook that repeats this page."
- You can show your template inside Notebook with your own screenshots, or ours from `screenshots/`.
